

I find it troubling that BellSouth (and other phone companies) are trying to escape regulation over the providing of DSL service, I use a small ISP and could potentially suffer disruption over this, given the tendencies of the phone companies towards regional monopolism.